THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BOARD

To His Excellency, the Honorable Robert E. McNair, Governor of South Carolina, and to the Honorable Members of the General Assembly of South Carolina:

Dear Sirs:

We have the honor to transmit the report of the South Carolina State Library Board for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968.

The report, the twenty-fifth since the establishment of the State Library Board, contains a summary of twenty-five years of progress in developing libraries and in the improvement of library service. The record is one of achievement in which the whole state may take pride. In addition to the summary of a twenty-five year program, the report contains an account of the administration and use of State and Federal Aid for public libraries. Included for the first time is a report of state institutional library service and a statistical summary of college and university library service.

The State Library Board has been ready to assume additional responsibility as the need arose in the state and at this time its program encompasses not only service to public libraries but also the responsibility for the development of library service in state supported institutions and the provision of library service to the blind and handicapped.

The report reflects the progress being made in every field of library activity, and shows an increasing use of all libraries by the citizens of the state. With the continued interest of the Governor and of the Legislature in library service of a high level, the State Library Board looks forward with confidence to even greater achievement in the future.

Respectfully submitted,

H. CARLISLE BEAN,
Chairman

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BOARD

July 1, 1967 - June 30, 1968

Certain anniversaries in a service program dictate an evaluation of progress and a comparison with the past. This year, 1968, the twenty-fifth in the State Library Board's program, presents both the opportunity and the obligation for such an evaluation. The library program closely integrated with the state and local community has shared in the phenomenal progress made by the state in the years since World War II and has contributed to that progress.

1943

The State Library Board established its first office and began its program in the spring of 1943 with an appropriation of $3,000. The WPA Library Program had terminated in March of that year and the State Library Board inherited its few assets and a minimal state-wide public library program. There were 28 county libraries and one regional library not yet permanently established. The extent of service was fair; the level of service was uniformly poor. Forty-six per cent of the people of the state were without public library service. In many of the counties from two to six separate and independent small libraries existed, dissipating the limited local support in duplication of service. Where ever it existed the public library was poorly supported, inadequately staffed and equipped, but heavily used by the reading public.

Book-wise the state was poverty stricken. The State Library Board's collection, inherited from the WPA, numbered only 25,888 volumes. Public libraries had one-third of a book per capita, and even this figure was based on book collections with a high percentage of worn-out and out-of-date materials. Reference collections were small and in some libraries consisted of less than twenty-five useful reference volumes. Periodicals were scarce and in most cases of a popular type for recreational reading.

All libraries were understaffed. There were only twenty-six professional librarians employed in all of the public libraries of the state. Salaries were poor and staff benefits few.

There were two strong factors in the public library program—the firm conviction of the people of the state that libraries were a good thing and a strong legal basis for establishing and maintaining library service. The laws of the state provided for a state library agency to provide planning and leadership and for the establishment of both county and regional libraries. On this foundation the state's present library program has been built.

At the beginning of its first full year of operation July 1, 1943, the State Library Board had the following assets: an appropriation of $15,000; 25,888 books transferred from the WPA library project; a station wagon which had been converted into a bookmobile; and some library equipment transferred from the WPA. The staff was composed of a director who was a professional librarian and a clerk; both are still on the present staff. The offices of the Board were two small rooms over the annex of the South Carolina National Bank. From these small beginnings grew the state's present extensive public and institutional library program.

By any standard of measurement, progress has been substantial in all areas of library development including book collection, circulation, library income, number of professional librarians, and in the organization of library systems. Whereas in 1943 46% of the population were without library service, today the percentage has been reduced to 4%. Book collections in the public libraries have grown from 1943's 620,500 to 1968's 2,374,363. The public's use of libraries has more than doubled and library income has increased 1,151%—from 14¢ per capita to $1.44 per capita. The number of professionally qualified librarians employed in the public libraries has increased from 26 in 1943 to 67 in 1968. Forty-four of the state's forty-six counties now have county-wide library service with the prospect of the establishment of such service in the remaining two counties within the immediate future. By making it possible for them to join county library systems, the number of small independent municipal libraries has been reduced from twenty-seven to eight. State Aid, set at $300 per county in 1943, has increased now to 20¢ per capita for total county population.

The sincere interest of the people of the state in books and reading, the concern of state leaders and of the South Carolina Legislature that local library service should be good service, and the realistic planning of the State Library Board to make such service possible with the limited funds available has resulted in public library service of a good level for the entire state.

The State Library Board itself has grown with the program. From the two small rooms over the South Carolina National Bank, it has moved into the state complex and looks forward to occupying within the next year the handsome new State Library Building now under construction. Its book collection has increased from 1943's 25,888 volumes to 1968's 172,365 volumes with a reference collection of over 73,570 volumes. The collection of business and technical journals numbers 296. Its services have expanded to include the following: (1) the extension and improvement of public library service (2) the establishment and improvement of library service in state institutions (3) state-wide library service to the blind and physically handicapped (4) the development of interlibrary cooperation for the maximum use of the state's total library resources (5) library service to state government, state agencies and state employees.

The State Library Board administers State Aid and Federal Aid under the Library Services and Construction Act. Its responsibilities include not only a library service as such, but the administration of a program for public library building construction including a building planning program. To handle these additional responsibilities, the State Library Board staff has now grown to 34 and will be further expanded upon the occupation of the new building. With a much wider range of responsibilities, the South Carolina State Library Board looks ahead confidently to the challenge of continuing development and better utilization of the state's entire library resources.

FEDERAL AID TO SOUTH CAROLINA LIBRARIES

Since 1956 the South Carolina State Library Board has administered funds received under the Library Services Act, now the Library Services and Construction Act. The four titles of this Act provide for the development of public library service, the construction of adequate public library buildings, the development of state institutional library service, the establishment of interlibrary cooperative systems, and the provision of library service to the blind and physically handicapped. The funds are granted to South Carolina on the basis of a plan, designed to remedy the major deficiencies in library service, prepared by the State Library Board. The amount of funds granted to the State is determined by the ratio of the State's total population and per capita income to the national average. The program is administered by means of a series of projects which provide grants-in-aid to public and institutional libraries to meet specific needs.

LSCA TITLE I: PUBLIC LIBRARY SERVICE

ADMINISTRATION: The Administration Project is responsible for planning, funding, accounting, and reporting for the overall public library program in the State. The Field Service Program has direct responsibility for the administration of State Aid to county and regional libraries, for the provision of field service and consultation to public libraries, and for the supervision and direction of projects through which the Title I program of LSCA is implemented.

REFERENCE AND INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE: The Reference and Interlibrary Loan Service supplements the resources and strengthens the reference services of South Carolina public libraries by providing a strong central collection of specialized and technical materials. The Project serves the general library patron, as well as business and industry, by means of requests referred from local library systems. In anticipation of the State Library Board's expanding role in service to state government, plans have been initiated for the further strengthening of the reference program. The reference staff has been enlarged, and substantial additions to the book, periodical, and microfilm holdings have been made. During the fall of 1967, the guide to Research Materials in South Carolina, a study done for the S. C. State Library Board by Dr. John Moore and published in cooperation with the South Carolina Library Association, was issued by the University of South Carolina Press.

PERSONNEL PROJECTS

One of the basic problems of the South Carolina library program is a continuing shortage of adequately trained and experienced professional and non-professional staff to implement good library service in the State. One of the chief means of alleviating this problem is the State Library Board's personnel program, involving several different projects, designed to recruit, train, and retain qualified personnel for South Carolina libraries.

INTERN PROGRAM: The Intern Program and its related publicity comprise the recruiting phase of the Personnel Program. The project, which was begun in 1959, provides work-training experience for college students and recent graduates. Its purposes are three-fold: to attract qualified young people into the profession of librarianship; to enable the interns to explore the possibilities of a library career; and to provide a testing ground for applicants for the Scholarship Program. During 1967-68, twenty-one young people were awarded library internships in fourteen library systems. Three of these young people have already applied for graduate library scholarships, and several others have indicated interest in library careers following graduation.

SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM: This program is intended to help South Carolina public libraries obtain qualified professional staff, thereby contributing to the overall improvement of library service. Up to five scholarships of $2,500 each are awarded each year to college graduates with outstanding ability. Each scholarship recipient is sponsored by a county or regional library in the State which guarantees them professional employment after graduation. During 1967-68 four scholarship recipients were enrolled in ALA accredited library schools for all or part of the year. These individuals were sponsored by the Fairfield County Library, Florence County Library, and the State Library Board. In addition to the four persons currently enrolled in library school, twenty-seven individuals have graduated under the scholarship program or the work-study program which preceded it.

Of this number, twenty-two are presently employed in South Carolina public and academic libraries.

SALARY PROGRAMS: To assist South Carolina public libraries in retaining experienced professional staff, the State Library Board administers two salary programs. The Salary Supplement Project is designed to help local library systems bring professional salaries up to the recommended level in the South Carolina Public Library Standards. The Professional Salary Project is intended to increase the number of professionally qualified librarians employed in public library systems serving over 50,000 population. To be eligible for these projects, county or regional library systems must meet specific requirements showing evidence of local effort and all must develop classification and pay plans for their staff.

IN-SERVICE TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES: To increase the competence and skill of existing library staffs, the State Library Board provides training opportunities for professional and pre-professional personnel. Scholarship grants are given for regular courses in librarianship or for attendance at special workshops, institutes, or professional meetings. If no suitable workshop or course is offered by a library school or college, the State Library Board organizes and sponsors activities to meet specific needs. When suitable opportunities occur, library trustees are also awarded grants enabling them to attend appropriate workshops or institutes providing orientation and information.

During 1967-68, thirty-four libraries, including forty-one counties, were affected by the project, a number of them participating in more than one activity. Twelve non-professional staff members attended workshops in library science at South Carolina colleges, and three professional librarians were given grants to attend the Institute on Public Library Service to the Disadvantaged held at Emory University. The State Library Board also sponsored a three-day workshop on Work Simplification taught by Miss Jewel Hardkopf, Library Management Consultant, which was attended by thirty librarians representing twenty-one county and regional libraries and the State Library Board. This workshop and one on Personnel Utilization held in fiscal 1967 were designed to aid library administrators in developing position classification and pay plans.

The State Library Board's head cataloger directed a series of three workshops planned to assist catalogers and technical service librarians in dealing with problems involved in adopting the new cataloging code and to provide an opportunity to analyze the administrative problems in technical processing. Fifty-two persons, representing thirty-five library systems, participated in the three workshops.

COUNTY LIBRARY PROJECT

The County Library Project is intended to improve public library service by developing library systems of sufficient size and strength to provide good library service measured by either State or national standards. To encourage the unification of independent public library agencies into a single county system serving the entire population, grants-in-aid are made for each year of a demonstration program. The demonstration library is also intended to serve as a model of recommended practices and procedures for other county libraries and thus to influence for the better development of public library service throughout the state.

During 1967-68 one library system participated in the County Library Project, the York County Library being in the second year of a three-year program. Noteworthy events of the year were the acquisition of a new bookmobile and inaugurating of county-wide bookmobile service and the construction and occupancy of a new building for the branch library in the town of York.

REGIONAL LIBRARY PROJECT

The Regional Library Project is planned to enable small counties to join together in the establishment of regional systems in order to provide a higher level of library service through the sharing of materials, resources, equipment, and personnel. Under the terms of individual contracts, the State Library Board and the regional boards agree to cooperate in demonstrations of good public library service.

During 1967-68 two library systems participated in the regional project. The Aiken - Bamberg - Barnwell - Edgefield Regional Library was in the fourth and final year of a demonstration program designed to extend good library service to Bamberg County. The current project had been preceded by a successful regional project which created the original three-county region between 1957 and 1962 and by a two year Small Libraries Project which initiated library services in Bamberg County. The project has been quite successful, and service will be further improved following the planned construction of a new Bamberg County Library Building.

The Abbeville-Greenwood Regional Library was in the second year of a five year demonstration contract. Although the major innovations were made during the first year of the program, there was continued improvement in development of service in Abbeville County as well as improvements in service to rural areas and branch libraries. Contruction contracts have been awarded for the renovation of the post office building to become headquarters of the Abbeville County Library, which will further enhance service.

SMALL LIBRARIES PROJECT

The Small Libraries Project, an outgrowth of the Regional Library Project, is planned to enable a well established county library to extend service by contract to a neighboring county without county-wide service. The project is seen as an exploratory stage possibly leading to the formation of a regional library system. Following the legal establishment of the Williamsburg County Library in 1967, contracts were signed under which the Florence County Library agreed to provide professional supervision and assistance in the development of the headquarters library in Kingstree and to give bookmobile service to the communities of Hemingway and Greeleyville. The field services staff also continued exploratory efforts in Clarendon, McCormick, and Chesterfield counties in anticipation of projects there.

BOOK COLLECTION IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

The current Book Collection Improvement Project is part of a continuing program designed to strengthen the resources of South Carolina public libraries. In 1967-68, twenty-one libraries were eligible to participate in the BCIP project and received grants on the basis of 10¢ per capita. Expenditures exceeding $177,000 were made for the purchase or rebinding of books chosen from standard book selection tools.

The Book Collection Improvement Project has now been in effect for seven years. The cumulative effect has been a great strengthening and enlarging of existing book collections. The quality, appearance, and subject range of book collections throughout the state have been improved.

PERIODICAL PROJECT: The Periodical Project, an outgrowth and extension of the Book Collection Improvement Project, is a continuing program designed to improve reference services in public libraries of South Carolina by developing current collections and extensive back files of periodicals used for reference purposes. During 1967-68 twenty libraries serving twenty-four counties were eligible for participation in the Periodical Project. A total of $11,027 in grant funds was spent for subscriptions, supplementing local funds budgeted for this purpose. Evaluating the project at the end of four years, participating librarians were unanimous in declaring it a success and a valuable aid in meeting reference and information needs.

THE CATCH-UP PROJECT: The "Catch-Up" Project is intended to assist new library systems which have not previously been eligible for LSCA grants. These systems are given grants of $2,500 for each of two years. Since each library's needs are different, expenditures are determined by a budget worked out by the librarian and the field service librarian assigned to the library. Funds may be used for books, periodicals, binding or equipment, if need is demonstrated. During the year, three libraries participated in this project: the Abbeville - Greenwood Regional Library, the York County Library, and the Lancaster County Library.

LIBRARY INTERPRETATION

The State Library Board conducts a broad program of publicity and public relations in order to inform the public of library services available at local and state levels and to encourage the further use of these services. The program also provides publicity in support of LSCA and local projects, such as recruiting and personnel programs, county and regional demonstration programs, and book projects. The program has created a greater awareness of libraries on the part of South Carolinians and has been instrumental in winning support for library programs such as the increase in State Aid in 1967.

The Library Interpretation Program is carried out through a contract with a firm of public relations specialists. All news media are used to interpret the public library to the people of the state. Periodic news releases are made to South Carolina papers and to those in neighboring states which are circulated in South Carolina. Spot announcements as well as special programs and documentaries are presented by radio and television. Exhibits, brochures, folders, posters and flyers are designed and produced to meet specific needs. Two special exhibits were arranged and displayed at state-wide library and organization meetings during the year. One was on public library construction in South Carolina and one on the services of the State Library Board to be provided from the agency's new headquarters building.

AREA REFERENCE RESOURCE CENTERS

The state plan for library development calls for the creation of five area reference resource centers in South Carolina, each of which will have a strong reference and research collection to serve citizens in its area. As a step in implementing this plan, the State Library Board made the first grants-in-aid for the strengthening of the reference collections in the headquarters of designated resource centers. Grants were made only to those libraries among the five designated which could house additional reference materials adequately, provide space for the accommodation of patrons, and provide a staff capable of selecting and servicing the collections. Libraries receiving the grants agreed to allow patrons from beyond their immediate service area to visit and use the reference resources in the headquarters library. Initial grants of $6,500 each were made to the Charleston County Library, Florence County Library, and Greenville County Library.

LSCA TITLE II: PUBLIC LIBRARY CONSTRUCTION

In 1964 the Library Services Act was extended to provide funds for construction of public library buildings. The impetus of federal aid has stimulated the construction of public libraries across the nation in a number unequalled since the Carnegie grants of the early twentieth century. To qualify for a construction grant, a library must be legally established, meet requirements for State and Federal Aid, and demonstrate need. Priority and the amount of the grant are based on the type of library (i.e., regional or county headquarters, branch library, etc.) and population served. Matching local funds must be at least 34% of total construction cost, and adequate local funds for maintenance and operation must be available.

During 1967-68, four projects funded during fiscal 1967 were completed: the Sumter County Library Building; the York Branch of the York County Library; the St. Andrews Branch of the Richland County Library; and the Seneca Branch of the Oconee County Library. Completion of the State Library Board's building is anticipated in the fall of 1969.

In fiscal 1968, six construction projects were approved by the State Library Board:

Abbeville County Library Headquarters

Appalachian Grant: $30,000

Total Cost: $156,000

Architect: John Rogers, Easley

The Newberry - Saluda Regional Library Building and the John Dart Branch Library have been completed; construction continues on the other projects.

LSCA TITLE III: INTERLIBRARY COOPERATION

The Library Services and Construction Act was extended in 1966 to include three new programs: Title III - Interlibrary Cooperation; Title IV-A - Institutional Library Service; and Title IV-B - Library Service for the Handicapped. During 1967-68, an Advisory Council representing the major college and university libraries, libraries of business and industry and special libraries, met to investigate and study areas in which projects of interlibrary cooperation are needed and to develop project plans. However, because of Congressional delay in funding the program and the inability to employ a qualified project director, it was impossible to initiate this project during the current year.

LSCA TITLE IV-A: INSTITUTIONAL LIBRARY SERVICES

The objective of Title IV-A is the establishment and/or the improvement of library services to residents and staff of State institutions which are operated or substantially supported from State funds. Specifically, it undertakes to provide more adequate direction and supervision from state level; improvement of service within the institution itself; the development of cooperative programs with local public library systems when such programs will benefit the institutions; and the improvement in the quantity and quality of book collections in the state institutions. In January 1968, a Consultant for Special Programs was employed to assume direction of Titles IV-A and IV-B. Working with an Advisory Council, consisting of representatives of all state institutions; it was decided to undertake a survey of the present level of institutional library service to determine needs and eligibility for participation in the program. Upon the completion of the survey of State institutions, the Special Programs Consultant offered his services in an advisory capacity to eligible State institutions attempting to improve library service.

The survey having revealed that the strengthening of library resources was a basic need in all institutional libraries, a Book Collection Improvement Project was initiated. During 1967-68, four State institutions qualified for grants of $5,000 each to purchase books from standard selection sources. Participating institutions included the S. C. Department of Corrections, the S. C. School for the Deaf and Blind, the S. C. State Hospital, and the Crafts-Farrow State Hospital. The recruiting and training of qualified personnel being a second basic need, personnel programs were initiated comparable to those provided for public libraries under Title I. The Intern Program was begun in the summer of 1968, with the employment of a library intern in the South Carolina State Hospital Library. A Graduate Scholarship Program and a Salary Supplement Program are also being developed.

LSCA TITLE IV-B: LIBRARY SERVICE FOR THE PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED

In 1961 the South Carolina State Library Board joined the North Carolina State Library in establishing the North Carolina-South Carolina Regional Library for the Blind. Supported by state funds and using Talking Books supplied by the Library of Congress, the Regional Library provided service to blind residents of the Carolinas. When Title IV-B of the Library Services and Construction Act expanded the Library of Congress's program of service to the blind to include the physically handicapped, federal funds became available for this purpose. The State Library Board and an Advisory Council representing all agencies and organizations serving this group agreed that the best method of providing service to the handicapped was to expand the North Carolina-South Carolina Regional Library for the Blind. This decision was implemented in 1967-68, and the library's collection of Talking Books and Braille was augmented by a collection of books in large print, musical recordings, and other recorded materials not provided by the Library of Congress. An intensive program of publicity was undertaken to make the services of the Regional Library known to all eligible handicapped persons. News releases, radio and television spots, exhibits, brochures, and posters were developed by the State Library Board's public relations firm for this purpose.
